WASHINGTON CITY.

The Origin of the Mary Merritt Charges against Bristow.

WASHINGTON April 29.—E. B. Northrup, editor of the Milwaukee Commercial Times, in which paper the article appeared making the charges against Bristow in connection with the Whisky Ring, was examined to day. He testified he wrote the article and that the deputy U. S. marshal just called his attention to the subject and asked him to work up the case. It was either Ed Simpson or Burke. His knowledge of the case was derived from Col Goodwin who received his statement from Alexander Hinz. Hinz, a detective, likewise derived his information from Weiss. The witness knew nothing of the case except what he derived from others and by an examination of the court record. The witness in reply to a question by Secretary Bristow said that Col Goodwin during the last eight months was engaged exclusively in whisky frauds in Milwaukee. Secretary Bristow asked the witness whether Col Goodwin was not also employed and owned money because of his official course in the prosecution of those who were engaged in whisky frauds.

Representative Bright remarked that the committee were not engaged in examining whisky frauds. He had been arraigned on charges preferred by a member of Congress (Judge Cole) and it seemed to him he was competent to show the motive of the attack. Bright objected on grounds of irrelevancy.

Harlan said the committee had better send for Col Goodwin and put him on the stand. He could then be interviewed as to his motive. The question seemed to be an attempt to throw discredit on the witness without giving the latter an opportunity to be heard. If witness was heard it would be proper to put the question.

After conversation by several members of the committee, Northrup said that Col Goodwin did not instigate the publication of the statement against Bristow.

O. E. Weiss, formerly deputy collector at Milwaukee, next testified as to his conduct in relation to the Mary Merritt. The witness resisted the remission of the bond of $15 000 for the forfeiture of the vessel until his interests were secured. He paid Col Hubbell $500 out of gratuities for not interfering with the seizure, and not in consequence of any private ... with that gentleman. The witness said that Gen Bristow, after he had made his argument before secretary Richardson in company with counsel for Arlees retired saying he merely proposed for his neighbors and friends. He had no pecuniary interest in the matter. Witness had found, in his experience in the custom house, that unless the custom house officers made previous arrangements with the district attorneys about a division of the moiety, the attorneys would not institute proceedings and the remission was virtually sanctioned by secretary Richardson, hence the payment without suit to Judge Hubbell was a matter of gratitude that he did not institute proceedings against Arlees. Hubbell was a member of Congress, not a district attorney at Milwaukee. $500 for presenting the case before Secretary of the Treasury Richardson ... an item that the press at large prohibited for many important and immediate positions was inadequate to induce men of requisite ability to fill them. But the majority disregarded all such arguments and cut down the force and salaries even of scientific employees of the patent office which rendered more than self sustaining by the fees derived from inventions. The majority of the House insisted in reducing from ten to fifteen per cent the salaries fixed in 1873 for clerks in the executive departments, when the salary of a congressman was only $5,000 per annum but only reduced their pay $500 from presidential salary of $50,000. An earnest and almost successful effort was made to prevent the reduction of the present salary of Territorial judges. Delegate Jacobs called attention to the large pecuniary interests involved in admiralty cases in Washington Territory, and predicted that every member of that tribunal will resign if the present small pay is reduced.

All the paragraphs relating to the surveyor general's offices were withdrawn, including the corresponding consolidation, the public lands committee's proposition to sell the first six townships and sectionizing of lands west of 600 meridian and east of the Sierra Nevada—provision to be made for them in the omnibus appropriation bill.

Chinese Question in the Senate.

Sargent's speech on the Chinese question will be delivered early next week. He is sanguine that by the thorough presentation of the subject which he proposes to make to the Senate important action by party of the treaty making power can be secured to accomplish the desired result.

His Reappointment and the Civil Service Rules.

Representatives Lane and Luttrell appeared before the Senate committee yesterday to urge a favorable report on the House bill concerning the Klamath Reservation and Oregon Wagon Road Co. The bill makes slow progress there being a strong disinclination to authorize the issue of more land scrip.

Congressman Page has been detained from the capital several days by the extreme illness of his son aged nine years, who is now however somewhat better.

Louis Goldstone has arrived here to give testimony before the House committee investigating Alaska matters. Harry Miesels of Nevada and Bernard Jacobs and wife, of California are also here on a visit of pleasure.

Receipt of Silver at the Treasury.

WASHINGTON April 29.—The treasury department this morning received $100 000 in silver quarters from San Francisco. This is the first instalment of an order for $500 000. To retain needful liquid liability the treasury officials will soon make some changes in issuing of silver owing to the general inclination of the people to hold fractional currency in anticipation of its scarcity.

Morton's Honesty Impugned.

The World's Washington special says Morton's honesty is impugned. The facts of the case as alleged are these. In the Thirty second Congress an act making an appropriation to pay the expenses of transporting and delivering arms and munitions of war to the loyal citizens of the States of which the inhabitants now are, or hereafter may be in rebellion against the United States and to provide for the expense of organizing them into companies battalions regiments or otherwise for their own protection against violence of insurrection invasion or rebellion was passed July 31 1861. Two million dollars were appropriated under this act. It will be observed that the act was loosely drawn and susceptible of various construe tions. Among the list of war expenditures in connection with the above is this item for supplying transportation and delivery of arms and munitions of war in the States in rebellion against the government of the United States to Governor of Indiana ... $40 000 Indiana was never in rebellion against the government of the United States and it was a query why Morton should have had $2 0 000 when there was no purpose under the statute making the appropriation for which the money could have been legally expended. Morton brought the matter to the correspondent that in the Indiana legislature of 1861 some difficulty had occurred between the Democrats and Republicans. The two parties were a tie in the Senate and the Democrats had a majority in the House. The Republican senators broke up the quorum to prevent some party legislation and the Democrats slipped by until the legislature was compelled to adjourn without the transaction of business. No appropriations were made,—not even for expenses of running the State government. Everything seemed to be in danger of coming to a standstill in Indiana when Morton made a trip to Washington, and upon his return to Indianapolis he secured a paymaster's office, and began to pay the expenses of the State government. No one except Morton's most intimate friends knew where he got the money and but very few know to this day. The proper way to have obtained the money to run the State machinery would have been to convene the legislature for the purpose of passing the appropriation bills. This radical Morton would not do as the legislature was Democrat. That Morton obtained his money from the two million appropriation above referred to is certain, and also that he misapplied the $2 0 000. Correspondence in the Treasury Department will show three unsuccessful attempts have been made by members of Congress to obtain this correspondence. Bristow perhaps, with a desire to record doing anything that would injure Morton, refused the confidential request for the correspondence. Bristow signified the wish that Morton should know what was coming, before any steps were taken in the case and the member prosecuting also was acquiesced and was considerably excited and demanded to know if a public investigation into the affairs was to be made. He said he should summon witnesses from Indiana to testify in his behalf. He did telegraph for a man by the name of Burns who lived in this city to come on. Burns was a colonel in the State during the war. Another attempt to obtain or at least examine the correspondence pertaining to the case will be made Monday and Bristow will do well to open every avenue that can throw light on the transaction. It will be investigated by Glover's committee on the 2nd instant.

The Morton $250,000 Scandal.

WASHINGTON April 29.—The friends of Senator Morton express themselves as confident that he is able fully to meet the recent charges against his integrity in connection with the $250 000 he received from the government in the spring of 1865. Of this amount he expended as Governor in behalf of the State $13 000 for military purposes for which the State settled with him, and this amount was paid back to the government by the settlement of a like amount from the payment of the expenses due to Indian war advances made to the government in the beginning of the war. The balance of the $250 000—namely $16 000—he did not use, but returned to the government. The investigation is now entirely closed with the exception of some papers which show this fact. It appears that a few days ago Representative Sortwell called at the Treasury Department and wished to examine the war accounts of Senator Morton while Governor of Indiana. The Secretary declined to permit such examination, unless Senator Morton or Sortwell, his friend, or him should be present and informed Senator Morton of these facts. Senator Morton then called on Springer and said to him he had no objection to have an examination of his entire war expenditures, but desired to be represented in such examination by a friend. Morton, accordingly, telegraphed to Governor Morton, who was chief of ordnance, and General Terrell, who was his military secretary, to come to Washington and both of these gentlemen are now here. Morton will take an early occasion in the Senate to fully explain the transaction regarding it, and will afford all necessary facilities for a complete examination of the subject.

Kilbourn Case—Judge Carter's Decision.

Judge Carter's decision in the Kilbourn case is regarded as a declaration that the law for punishing contumacious witnesses before Congress practically deprives Congress of the dangerous power of imprisoning such witnesses. His interpretation is that when a witness refuses to answer courts must decide whether the suspended question is pertinent and whether by the refusal to answer the witness has incurred the penalty provided. The offence, if any, is a misdemeanor punishable by fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court. Congress has no right to confer upon the House when the witness refuses to answer, the power to commit him without any judicial investigation as to whether he has refused to answer a question that was pertinent or not. The House is composed largely of men of little experience in the legal rights of citizens, and possibly a partisan body, and others who thought the Anderson case went much further than it was, have been loaded for Kilbourn. It is now clear that Congress must either repeal the law making contumacy a misdemeanor or must abandon the separate and independent right of self punishment for insults and contempt under the inherent right of self preservation and dignity in such cases.

Postal Changes.

Discontinued Stonesburgh, Lane county, post masters appointed John Chrisman, Jamaica, Umatilla county, Oregon, J. Thomson, Pacific county, Washington Territory, purposes for F. Stump, Walla Walla county, W. T. ... Sarah A. Graham, Toledo, Benton county, Oregon.

The Adjournment of Congress.

The House Washington special says the passage of the legislative appropriation bill was that the House means to expend its energies and hopes to adjourn the second week in June. The question however is complicated with the impeachment trial. If however it is delayed long, as it seems is probable to enable members to attend conventions.

The Biggest Steal of all.

The chairman and two members of the House naval committee stated to day that while they had not expressed any opinions nor given out any information in regard to the culpability of this person or that in connection with the irregularities of the Philadelphia navy yard still the evidence which they had taken when printed would show all of all the steals which has been examined in the investigations the steal at the Philadelphia navy yard would prove to be the biggest. The arrangements were made by the department and other officials in connection with the transfer of the site, which were simply of an outrageous character from the fact that the pieces of ground which one of the committee said was seven inches under water, was taken for that which was eligible in every respect.

A Great Bill.

Glover's amendment to the legislative appropriation bill which passed to-day is very important. He hit in a skillful combination 30 words the effect his amendment will have. It will save more millions than Randall promised in his most enthusiastic moments. The tremendous effort is all produced in the last 2 lines, except those for whom specific appropriations are made in this bill. If the Senate agrees to the bill the diplomatic service will be entirely abolished, and the river and harbor bill will be a dead letter. Whether this provision would not abolish the army and navy is a grave legal question. All work under the chief of the architect of the navy would be stopped, and the bureau would have no further existence. It also abolishes the engraving and printing business. It has been suggested that Glover only intended to prohibit the employment of a few draughtsmen and clerks but any way he has led the House into a trap.

CONGRESSIONAL.

House.

WASHINGTON April 29.—Hurlbut from the military committee ... tion of the ... the committee on military affairs from the duty of further inquiring into charges made against Hon. Secretary of War. ... was that of the investigations were pursued, a large number of witnesses would have to be summoned from Texas, and as the wrong doings if any such occurred, belonged to a remote time he would now be barred from criminal prosecution. Adopted.

Luttrell offered a resolution directing the Secretary of war to cause an examination to be made of the harbors of Mendocino Humboldt Bay, Trinidad and Crescent City California, with the view of establishing breakwaters and harbors of refuge, adopted.

Morrison introduced a bill in relation to the storage of fermented liquors, which provides that section 3 33 of the revised statutes shall be amended by the addition of the following: Any brewer having cellars or vaults not on the brewery premises may be permitted by the internal revenue collector assigned in connection with his brewery for storage of unfinished fermented liquors produced by him may remove such fermented liquors in an unfinished condition to such cellars or vaults, or from thence to the brewery, in packages unlike those ordinarily used for fermented liquors without extinguishing the stamps or other marks payments or permits mentioned in this section.

Harris chairman of the committee on elections called up the contested election case of Lemuel ... Farwell from the 3d congressional district of Illinois the majority of the committee supporting the claim of Lemuel and the minority those of Farwell. The latter secured the signature in favor of the claimant of Lemuel.

Brown, of Kansas spoke in support of the views of the minority of the committee, and in favor of the claims of the sitting member, Charles B. Farwell.

Thompson of Massachusetts, spoke in support of the views of a majority of the committee.

THE NEW DEAL

THE PRO AND CON BY MITCHELL AND APPLEGATE.

The following is an argument against the nomination of U. S. Senator by the State convention, and in favor of the caucus system, by Mitchell, dated Washington March 25th, 1876, together with Applegate's letter of reply. Mitchell says:

Now my dear sir, I am very sorry, I am sure, to have to disagree with one so much older, and who has had so much more experience in Oregon politics than myself but I tell you, General I don't agree, after a full consideration with either proposition, and I will tell you why. Suppose you were to nominate a candidate for Senator at the State convention in May. Suppose you were to nominate a candidate for Senator at the State convention in May. Suppose the man nominated should be the very best man in Oregon, for instance, even though they nominated as good a man as yourself, for that position, before the legislature had time to convene you would be killed off, so dead, in my judgment, that you would not be able, probably, under any circumstances to secure one-third of the votes necessary to elect. Don't you see, that as ... a man is ... and ... to him the candidate of the party, he will be the target of all the arrows true and false, not only of the opposition party, but of his personal enemies within his own party?

Another objection to nominating is this: As the case now stands, there are probably twenty such, at a low estimate, in the State of Oregon, who are sufficiently prominent each to become a candidate for that position before the next legislature—I mean within the Republican party—all good men, some of them, perhaps, better than others, some more meritorious than others; some perhaps, that have more claims on the party than others, but yet all good true Republicans who have fought to advance the interests and promote the welfare of the party in years gone by—each of whom doubtless, thinks that he has as much right to the highest honors of the party as the other. Now, then; all these men, as the case now stands, will work heartily, and throw all their influence to secure the election of a Republican legislature at the general election. Hope is a mighty incentive in the human breast, and a man will work, even for his own party more vigorously and more effectively when he has hope of reaping personal benefit than he would be willing to do otherwise however much he may love his party and its principles and desire to see it succeed. But, sir, suppose you nominate your candidate for Senator on the 3d of May at the State Convention. Then you have already tested the question over a month prior to the election as to the man that shall receive the honors of the party in case a Republican legislature is elected and you at once lose to a very great extent the influence and effective work of the remaining probable candidates. But not only this each candidate, or probable candidate has his circle of friends throughout the State, and the nomination of a candidate prior to the close of the legislature would lose to a very great extent the influence and work of a circle of friends of the other nineteen probable candidates. Now General, I know you can make a good speech, but I defy you to answer this, or if you think you can answer it logically and successfully, I should like to hear from you.

Now, in reference to the other proposition, that they will pronounce against caucus. I am opposed to this for the following ... This is a republican government, it is a despotism of majorities, in which people believe that the affairs of government ... You believe this ... never could believe, with your ideas of government, that a minority should control the destinies of this government or shape its administration. The only way to sustain the government is to abide by the will of a majority ... and so with a political party. The only way to sustain a party and its organization is to be governed by the wishes of the majority, and the only way to determine this is by a caucus, so far as relates to the election of U. S. Senators. Whenever you concede that a minority in any political party may stand out, and in the selection of its officers or candidates refuse to be governed by the will of the majority, then sir, you at once establish the doctrine of disintegration and ruin.

THE REPLY.

SAINT PAUL, LANE CO., April 21, 1876.

Hon. J. H. MITCHELL, U. S. Senator—Dear Sir: I hope you will do me the justice of remembering that the plan of abandoning the caucus system was discussed some time prior to the publication of the proposition in the State Journal—that I counseled, by letter, freely with you, that the object of the move was to unite the elements that had been antagonized and embittered by the caucus mill, that it was deemed satisfactory, and I was once agreed to proceed and consequently published my proposition in the Journal more than a year ago, and therefore it is no newly sprung measure. I believe you when you say that you are "very sorry to have to disagree" with me. But it will perhaps be some consolation to us both to remember that "loyal men may honestly differ."

According to my judgment you will find everything of logical weight or value in your argument anticipated and answered in my extract, published in the Oregonian of March 21st. Yet I will reply to your argument as you present it, the same being the latest attempt to justify the caucus system I have ever met with. I extract this argument from your letter to me of the 25th of March, the receipt of which was acknowledged on the 28th inst. and send it to the Oregonian to be published along with this answer.

I hope I am not the "very best man in the State nor have I ever pretended to be near "as good a man as" I ought to be yet I must remark that it is no part of an argument in the abstract to put a man down—the mere allusion or hint that he might be assailed. To me my past life is neither a ghost nor an affright. Ever since I leaped into this country, so to speak, over the Celilo falls the yarn of my life has been spun out right here before everybody's eyes. Almost all, more or less have assisted in spinning it out and with all its qualities of coarse and fine, of even and lumpy, it belongs to a class of home made Oregon production—a "circumstance," a narrative," a "tale" in common with the hands of us, including perhaps as many as twenty "probable candidates" Oregon is our home. We have volunteered in the common defense—to cut roads through the forests—to build bridges and school houses; we have taken part with our fellow citizens in public affairs—to assist in establishing government here—to resist the extension of slavery—to counteract the waves of treason and, we have sought to do our duty to God and country. We have fought the Democracy with both the tongue and the pen using every argument—irony and sarcasm jest and anecdote pun and conundrum, and, yet, in all this long time, not one Democratic newspaper has assailed us with a single charge of venality, or dishonorable action or transaction, publicly officially or privately. Now, then, must we believe that should one of us be fairly nominated by a convention of our party for the U. S. Senate that, therefore all the Democratic electors and all of us, except the one nominated, would let fly at him with deadly venom? Is your reasoning instrument in such adjustment as that this appears to be the true conclusion? Behold your fact which you take as your logical basis "That if we should nominate 'the very best men in Oregon' the probable candidates," personal enemies the "probable candidates," with the true and false would kill him off—would naturally go after him like vicious beasts of prey to destroy him." The assumption that this would be probably the case constitutes your postulate which if untrue your conclusion must be false. It would be sufficient for any ordinary logical purpose simply to deny the premise, but I can do better than this. I can save you the trouble of attempting to establish the truth of your fact or postulate. I will save you since you speak of logic from so impossible an undertaking. Waving the question of truth the argument of moral philosophy, of historical experience and personal observation, it is sufficient to observe that your assumption proves too much. Its logical consequences are fatal. Followed out, it would defeat all nominations by conventions of the people such as Presidents, Governors, Congressmen, Judges, &c., &c., and also demonstrate the utter fallacy of the Republican theory of government, and the absolute futility of free institutions. Thus the argument is not answered, but demonstrated to be false by the direct and absurdum.

Your hope theory assumes that there are twenty probable candidates for the State in Oregon, who are a pack of mean spirited Ays, each of whom, feeling his unworthiness and utter lack of any just claim upon the situation, coolly or ... if ... so ... it, by using advantage of their ... ility or cowardice, the any labor or ... the they may be induced ... to bestow. Having too much of the quality ... of the fox, or the wolf, to allow him to ... out in open daylight and ... his claims before the people, with honorable ... by his ... rival like an ordinary ... to uncover, magnify ... hidden in the bush ... If they can successfully cheat ... a show ... which a majority ... them a majority of ... majority is taken by wheedling, hiring (for this is prior to the organization of the legislature and the ... ing to of the members) and by driving under the party lash into a caucus pen. This driving has always been an almost impossible job with the Republicans. Not so with the Democracy, however, they usually walk in with the docility of so many work steers. They are bred up and educated or trained to it.

But the Signs knows who it wants for ... tor. It knows all the time, notwithstanding this presence "that such has a thing," and it sends forth an army of hired knaves to whip and drive "those fellows" into the caucus. And they hunt them, day and night, and whip and drive them in. Is the true way to uphold our noble institutions? History tells us that the ancient Eastern kings used to have their soldiers driven to the front of battle under the lash. The dogged obedience with which politicians hunt down and drive into the caucus members of the legislature is, for degrading effects, not a very ... improvement upon the practice of the ancients.

This hope pertains to ... that sort of a disgrace to the figure ... manhood that nothing can so much impair ... enthusiasm as an opportunity to cheer ... betray all his friends. A mere denial is a ... logical answer to this argument; for ... can prove that there are twenty ... candidates in Oregon, each one ... to take his chances before a convention of his fellow citizens and proudly work for his successful rival? ... can prove that there are not twenty such men in the Republican party, who have an honest desire to know before-hand for whom they are working and what they are about, and, not desiring to cheat, ... to be cheated, and would work for the cause with ... if this ... and counter-work ... the bad ... ceeding from the disappointed hopes of your twenty probables? If I should ... a logical ... that the achievement of the proposed reform would ... energy and bring ... to the front, a ... Rukewarm Republ... who seldom ... not a vote, ... would ... Who can say there is not ... and people would be glad to sustain the proposed ... And who can undertake to pro... that the ... of this ... not demoralizing and ... ing, and ... country, ... for ages would not ... materially cause the ... of the ... to be ... He proposes ... of these questions ... ons feel to the ... hypothesis.

But this postulate, which stands for the ... of an unassailable syllogism ... falls to the ground upon the touch of one of the simplest and ... tests of logical tests. By such inspection the ... can perceive that the proposition is ... inference with special reference to the consequences. At the mere touch of the logician's wand it must inevitably fall apart like a rope of sand and ... from the same defect in its composition. Your first ... violates the ... rule, petitio principii, ... making. ... your premise as true, and the ... of ... government is questioned. Now ... by ... ventions of the ... would be proper in be wrong in the first ... and, also, fatal in the ... If the Signs knows ... that such a ... to compromise a man for the Presidency, ... ance, and not only be certain to bar the votes of the elector from him, but as surely send him to the penitentiary.

This brings me to the third clause of the logical jig which you throw at me. Of course a republic is a government by majorities, but to assume that they are to be found by going to a Tammany, Black Horse, or what we in modern times call a clique, is, to my mind, a subtle and dangerous non sequitur, not to say a fraud. Suppose also ... be sixty men in the legislature, and a political party gain thirty-one—a majority, ... a majority, and may nominate ... for a legislature of sixty. But it is ... by the ... that the sixty-one con... the ... ty. ... the ... ty, ... can dominate a ... ty. ... the ... ty, ... the ... thirty-one elect the ... by ... to ... into this vile ... and ... be ... and ... solemnly calling ... the people and their ... state convention, to lift it out ... mire.

But ... of ... ers ... the clique, the ... power behind the throne. Be it ... or ... the ... is the ... who does the work. ... ... the caucus, and puts the clique upon the ... tor, by which ... can be ... and yanked around and made to cross his own path, and turn upon and strike his own friends. The clique may be controlled, and ... by the one man. It is ... to the ... the Senator. A native hunter on the banks of the Amazon puts a hook into the nose of a ... dile, then strides his back and navigates him ... never be pitched off. The hunter in this instance is the majority, but the question ... up, is this a fair case of republican government?

BE CAREFUL.

It is a matter of universal remark that party ties are weaker now than they have been at any previous time for more than a quarter of a century. People with declared and well known party associations, scratch their tickets without the slightest compunctions of conscience or deference to the demands of the party organization; while those who were never quite so strict in their ideas of party allegiance hold themselves still more than ever aloof from political organizations. Independence in political action is an epidemic from which comparatively few have escaped entirely untouched, while a very large proportion of the community have become thoroughly inoculated with the virus. The people are voting as they please, and pleasing to vote to a very large extent as their judgment tells them their best interests require. The candidates that are to secure the strength of their party must be worthy to receive it. They must have no unpopularity of their own or other people's to carry. They must be above the suspicion of corrupt association. It may be the misfortune of some good man who would like to serve their country, to be unavailable at present, by reason of their relations or supposed relations to men and things that have fallen under the ban of popular condemnation. Such must stand aside until their real connections and surroundings are understood by the people, and they are thus enabled to come before the country with no burdens tied upon their backs. This is a thing to be pondered well by the State Convention which is to assemble next Wednesday. The people are not in the humor to be trifled with by politicians. They do not expect to be asked to endorse indirectly what they have condemned directly; and if an attempt is made to force them to do so, they will demonstrate their independence as conclusively as they have demonstrated it on more than one occasion heretofore. If the convention forget this, they will forget it at the peril of the ticket they bring out.

Another thing to be guarded is the nomination of men for office who have occupied prominent places in the controversies, or conflicts, which have of late distracted the Republican party in this State. No man who has been thus situated can be elected to any office by the people. There is not cohesive power in the fact of a Presidential election, sufficient to cement a union of the Republican voters of Oregon on any leading man on either side of these disagreements. No man thus related to the party will permit his name to be used in connection with any nomination, unless he is selfish enough to sacrifice the triumph of the principles of his party on the altar of his own selfish desire for personal advancement. There are good men and able men in the Republican ranks, enough to make up an excellent ticket for Congressmen and electors, without periling the success of the ticket by bringing forward obnoxious men. Let the leaders of all factions stand aside, and let there be harmony and the strength that harmony gives. If this course be pursued, victory is reasonably certain: if not, defeat stares the party in the face. It is time for concessions on all sides, but it is no time for coercion.

NOT SUFFICIENTLY PARTISAN FOR A JUDGE.

It is not for the purpose of criticising the nominee of the Democratic State Convention for Judge of the Second Judicial District, that we propose to offer some remarks upon the action of the convention in that matter. We have known Hon. John M. Thompson, the nominee, for some years, and have a favorable opinion of him as a gentleman and as a lawyer. Nor do we assume that there is any truth in the assertion of those who opposed his nomination, that it was secured by unfair means. Such things are generally said by the disappointed: and sometimes, though not always, without reason.

But that to which we desire to call attention at this time is the circumstance which caused the defeat of Judge Burnett in the Democratic convention. Two years ago he ran as an Independent or non-partisan candidate and was elected. His friends desired to have him nominated by the Democracy this year. There was no objection made to his ability or his integrity. It was conceded, or rather it was not questioned, that he had made a good judge, and his political opinions were too well known for any to question his Democracy. But he was opposed in the convention, because he had not always stuck to the organization. He was a man who dared to have an opinion of his own touching the duty of a citizen, and to act conscientiously in accordance with that opinion. On that ground he was objected to and rejected as unfit for a judge of the highest court of the State. We do not say that Judge Thompson is not just as good a man and just as suitable for the office as Judge Burnett; we do say, though, that it is a disgrace to any party and a danger to the country when such an objection as that made to Burnett's nomination can be successfully urged in that party's State Convention, against the nomination of a candidate for judicial office. A judge who will be of the least possible service to his party, in his official position, is unfit to sit on the bench; and a State Convention that will nominate a man to such a position as a reward for party services or in the hope of such services in the future, no matter how good a man the nominee may be, is a convention from which no one has a right to expect anything good. All that the people get from such a convention except what is vicious and vile should be set down for so much clear gain.

MORTON'S EXPLANATION.

Senator Morton exculpates himself from the charge of misappropriating $250,000 of funds belonging to the general government. He says the fact is that he only got $123,000 and that was all used for legitimate purposes and the government was afterwards reimbursed by the State of Indiana. Mr. Morton does not accompany his vindication with an exhibit of the authority, in the laws of the United States for a loan to the Governor of the State of Indiana, nor in the laws of Indiana for obtaining such a loan. If we concede the truth of Mr. Morton's defense, that does not relieve the case of all its embarrassments. State governments, as well as the general government, are supposed to be carried on within certain legal limitations and provisions. It may be safe to intrust the financial administration of a State to such incorruptible statesmen as Mr. O. P. Morton, but since it sometimes happens that men less distinguished for virtue than he are elected Governors, it is far from a safe precedent to allow the book-keeping of the State Treasury to be done "in the head" of the Governor. Mortons are scarce, in this wicked world, and it stands the country in hand, while accepting the Indiana Senator's explanation, to let it be distinctly understood that there is not to be any more of that high-toned sort of government. Along with the verdict of not guilty there should be an admonition to the defendant not to repeat the offense.

General Applegate's answer to Senator "Mitchell's" argument in favor of the corrupt political methods which the Republican managers imported from the Democracy, is worthy of careful attention. The Senator's theory of political action is bottomed on the assumption that every man who aspires to political honors is a knave, and thus the caucus should be retained because of its peculiar adaptation to the purposes of knaves. The General effectually disposes of the argument by showing that such is the exact meaning of the Senator's proposition, when brought to the test of critical analysis.

We are in receipt of the first number of the Douglas Independent, published at Oakland, Douglas county. It is, as its name indicates, independent in politics, promising to favor the Independent party, but not with the blind partisan slavishness that cannot see or will not censure the faults of its party. The name of the editor is not announced, but whoever he is, he is not wanting in the ability necessary to make a good paper.

We have no personal knowledge of the facts referred to in the letter from Yamhill county, published this morning, concerning the office of District Attorney for the Third District. If the report is untrue it does an injustice to the gentleman named, and we shall apply to the case the rule we announced some time ago of letting the responsibility rest on the author, unless he can verify his charge.

We regret to have to call the attention of the people of Washington county to a card from Mr. Thomas Paulsen declining the nomination for county commissioner. Mr. Paulsen is an excellent citizen, and would make a faithful and discreet commissioner if he could be persuaded to serve.

We have received notice by telegraph that the name of Mr. Max Muller was omitted from the list sent us of delegates to the Republican State Convention from Jackson county.

A GOOD WASHING MACHINE

COMPLETE WASHER

WITH GREAT SATISFACTION, WE CALL attention to the wonderful qualities of the "COMPLETE WASHER" Machine, which is in use by many of the best families in our city. It will make the wash look as white as snow, and there is no wear or clothes to tear to pieces. It is by excessive and excessive labor by the women of our land, who are toiling all day long on washing family washing in the hot suds, wearing away their knuckle bones and very lives over the tub in the cold, which causes our wives, sisters and loved ones to take cold so easily, causing pains in the back and limbs, rheumatism, pleurisy, chills and fever, etc., sometimes resulting in death. Ladies rescue yourselves from this thraldom, and purchase a Complete Washer. The Premium Washer of four years ago, which economizes time and does away with the excessive labor; for you know that for one to handle by hand large articles, such as quilts, etc., that is exceedingly difficult by the old mode. We advise and entreat everybody, therefore, to have one of these Machines. They are within the reach of every family.

Best of Wringers and Clothes Lines always on hand.

Of the great number who have this Machine in Oregon and on the Pacific slope, not one would part with it. Hundreds and thousands of such testimonials could be gotten.

Supplied by JOHN P. SCARFF,
Hardware and Variety Store,

LAND FOR IMMIGRANTS.

Choice Farms for Sale.

4,000 ACRES, IN QUANTITIES TO SUIT PURCHASERS.

230 ACRES DUE SOUTH AND ADJOINING the Railroad Depot at Salem, all under cultivation, and suitable for grain or vegetables. 320 Acres, four miles southeast of Salem, on the railroad, with Mill creek running through it. This is the choicest farming land in Marion county, with fine springs, a building in part of the old Rector donation claim, on which I raised the past year fifty bushels of wheat and three tons of timothy per acre. The first crop of oats ever raised on part of this land measured ninety-four bushels per acre, grain weighed and measured chained by Mr. Alfred Starkey, of Salem.

2,700 Acres of prairie and light brush land, with timber for farming purposes, bounded by the Willamette River for four miles, beautiful lake on the east, boat landings all along the river, commencing four miles north of Salem—the choicest grain land—the largest and most suitable body of land to be found in the Willamette Valley to be purchased by a colony. To be sold from $15 to $20 per acre. This land will all be immediately surveyed, and can be sold in larger or smaller parcels, to suit purchasers. It can be subdivided to the best possible advantage, and I can offer any person or persons, or colony of persons, desiring to purchase homes in the best part of the Willamette Valley, near the city of Salem and within reach of the best social advantages, at the most favorably located with respect to markets, greater advantages, for more favorable terms, than they can ever expect to realize again.

BRIEF NOTES.

May day.

Collector's day.

County court will convene to-day.

Portland boasts of an amateur minstrel troupe.

Button-hole bouquets are putting in a rash appearance.

Regular meeting of the Portland Light Battery this evening.

The picnic season will open—whenever the weather will permit.

There will be a special term of State circuit court Thursday, 4th inst.

The funeral of the late Barney Trainor was largely attended yesterday.

State Republican convention will meet in Portland Wednesday, May 3d.

Mrs. Wilson, wife of Conductor Wilson, of East Portland, is lying very ill.

Heath, pear, plum, cherry and apple trees have shed their blossoms and the tiny fruit can be seen.

Annual meeting and election of officers of the Progress Club this evening. Full attendance desired.

Master Albert Buchtel, son of Joseph Buchtel, Esq., is lying dangerously ill at his home in East Portland.

Wm. Pfunder, the well known druggist, has gone East on business, and will be absent for about two months.

The river is again rising and the water had partially covered the lower story of the O. S. N. Co's dock yesterday.

Over 300 passengers are on the steamer Oriflamme bound for this port, the majority of whom are immigrants.

At Snag Island there is a depth of water reported of 13 feet at mean low water, in a channel 60 feet wide, with 17 feet at either side.

A number of young men were out exercising their muscles yesterday, at the oars, preparing, no doubt, for the coming Centennial matches.

Within the past three weeks a great exodus among our surplus population has taken place. The destination has generally been the Columbia river fisheries.

During the absence of Miss Gertrude Wagner, who has gone on a trip to Germany, Prof. Yost will play the organ of the Catholic church in this city.

The bard has exclaimed, "May comes laughing o'er the plain" We should say, "Let her laugh." But where are her usual floral treasures? Has April's showers failed to bring forth their flowery fruits?

A small steamboat named the Hydra, recently built on Lewis river, was brought to this city for inspection. She was refused a certificate owing to having an English boiler. We learn this will be taken out and the one used in the Mizanzhaha be put in.

NOTES FROM SALEM.

The large and spacious residence of Dr. A. M. Belt, of this city, was filled last evening with the beauty and elite of the capital city, on the occasion of the party given by their daughter Miss Mira Belt.

IN MEMORIAM.

At a regular meeting of Hassalo Lodge No. 15, I. O. O. F., held on Friday evening, April 28, 1876, the following resolutions of respect to the late Edwin D. Backenstos, were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, Inasmuch as it hath pleased Almighty God to remove from our midst our well beloved brother Edwin D. Backenstos, therefore be it,

Resolved, That by his decease our order has lost a worthy member, the community in which he lived a trustworthy and respected citizen, and his family one who merited by his praiseworthy efforts in their behalf the deep affection with which they regarded him.

Resolved, That we extend to them our cordial sympathy in this their hour of sorrow, and commend them to the care of Him who alone can bind up the broken spirit.

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon our minutes, that a copy thereof under the seal of this lodge be transmitted to the family of our deceased brother, and that copies be also furnished to each of the daily papers in this city for publication.

A CARD.

BUTTE PRECINCT, Washington Co., Oreg., April 29, 1876.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Having received the nomination for county commissioner of the Republican county convention of this county, although I requested one of the delegates from our precinct to respectfully decline for me a nomination for any office whatever, will you please, by giving this a place in your paper, publish my declination of the nomination. I do not desire that or any other office at present, my private business requiring my whole and undivided attention. Yours truly, THOS. PAULSEN.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Read Kilbourn's advertisement. A rare chance to secure splendid bargains. Simon Harris' entire stock to be sold at auction.

THE COLBY WASHER.—Whoever wishes to buy a washing machine will do well to examine the Colby washer before purchasing, as it is durable, light, simple of construction and can be used in any common-sized wash-tub. It works on the true washing principle, its rollers, both the upper and the lower one, being fluted longitudinally. Mr. A. M. Cornelius is the agent for this county, is now canvassing Portland for the sale of this machine.

The wonderful $12,000 double calf now on exhibition at the Museum is drawing large crowds day and night. It will remain only a few days longer in the city. Now is the time to see it.

Ladies will remember that there remains but two days more in which to obtain bargains at Simon Harris'. The balance remaining will be sold at auction on Monday, May 1st, at 11 P. M.

Mr. M. Rosenblatt, the well known clothier, at 79 Front street, has opened a well selected stock of clothing, which includes new styles for youths all very attractive. Call on him.

Peter Wilhelm, of the "Fountain," First and Ash streets, keeps things in a cozy shape. His billiard tables are much admired and the new Virginius table is a great favorite. Call and see him.

IF THIS SHOULD MEET THE EYE of any one suffering from deafness, defective sight, nervous debility, or any other disease which has been improperly treated or pronounced incurable, they should at once consult Dr. Clegg, of London, who is now visiting this home, of London, who is now visiting this city. Office hours: 9 A. M. to 3 P. M., Chenowith Hotel.

Dead Body Found.

GEORGETOWN, April 29.—The dead body of an unknown man was found at Manhattan creek, about three miles from here, this morning. The man had probably been dead several weeks, judging from the appearances of the body when found.

Suicide Identified—Prof. Blake.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 29.—The body of a man, who committed suicide in a room in the Stanford House, on Fourth street, Thursday, and who wrote a letter to the coroner begging that no attempt be made to ascertain his identity, has finally been identified as no other than Prof. Blake, the mind-reader, who had become pretty generally known in this vicinity during his short stay here. Blake very evidently went to the Stanford House for the purpose of committing suicide. He had been in ill health of late, and this had induced the practice of taking opium to deaden sensibility. It is probable he was led to the act by mental excitement, which the drug caused, and by anxiety produced by the straightened circumstances in which he had recently been. As Prof. Blake he was well known in the East, and his skill in what is termed as mind-reading, attracted wide attention. He came to this coast about eight months ago. He leaves a wife and several children in the East.

$500 Side Walking Match Announced.

Arrangements have been concluded between the pedestrians O'Leary and Schmidt, to walk 500 miles for $500 aside, to commence Monday, May 15th. Both go into training to-morrow.

The City of Panama Released.

The Pacific Mail steamship City of Panama sailed at noon to-day for Victoria, the attachment on her stores having been released.

Dead Body Found.

Some laborers discovered a dead body floating in the creek near Larne's wharf, East Oakland. The deceased's name was Redman, a resident of East Oakland. He had been drinking heavily yesterday, and the supposition is that while in a state of intoxication he wandered down upon the wharf and fell into the creek.

Spalding Court-Martial.

In the Spalding court-martial to day the accused asked that he be relieved from close custody, as the only charge against him which, if proved, would have sent him to prison, had been disproved. The law upon the subject was read. The court had no right to relieve the prisoner from custody; that right was vested in the commanding officer. By request of the accused, Rear Admiral Rogers, commanding officer, telegraphed the Secretary of the Navy, asking that the release of Spalding be left to his (the admiral's) discretion. The court then adjourned until Monday at 2 P. M. The defense will not be fairly entered upon before Tuesday next.

City of Sydney Attached.

It is reported this evening that the stores of the Pacific Mail steamer City of Sydney had been attached at the instance of the Panama R. R. Co.

Meeting of the California Rifle Association.

The crack shots of the California Rifle Association held the monthly rifle match at Bay View range to-day. Distance 1,000 yards. The weather was favorable. Capt. H. J. Burns of the Sumner Guard, won the gold medal of the association for the second time by a score of 41 out of possible 50, each man being allowed ten scoring shots. This is two per cent. more than the standard required in the recent contest for a place in Creedmoor match for selecting a Centennial team.

Young Man Missing.

MARYSVILLE, April 29.—A young man named Donville, brother of Donville, foreman of Park's brass works in Sutter county, has been missing since Thursday night under circumstances which lead to the supposition that he lost his life by drowning. When last seen he was on his way to Butte slough with a team. One horse and the wagon were on the banks of the slough and the other horse was found some distance away. Donville's hat was found floating on the water. The supposition is that he found the water too high to cross with the wagon and attempted to ride one of the horses through and got into deep water and was drowned.

Suicide.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 30.—Julia Sichel, aged 21 years, committed suicide at her father's residence, No. 235 Tyler street, some time during yesterday by taking poison. She left letters bidding adieu to her family and friends; but containing, so far as the contents have been made public, no explanation for the commission of the act.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 30.—A German going by the name of Linehan was found dead in his bed at the Pacific Lodging House, on Leidesdorff street, this morning, having chloroformed himself to death. A letter attributing the act to family troubles was left.

Chinese Workmen Discharged.

Last evening Einstein Bros., boot and shoe manufacturers, discharged from their factory on Hayes street, near Vyness avenue, 75 Chinese employees. The firm expect to have the Mongolian element completely eradicated in a month. White men to-morrow will fill the places of the Chinese discharged.

The Road to Yosemite Open.

It is announced that the road to Yosemite by way of Mariposa is now open. Many people have been waiting at the various hotels of the city for several days to start for the valley.

State Robbers Sentenced.

SAN ANDREAS, Cal., April 30.—Michell Brown and Michel Ratovich, the Austrians convicted last week of robbery, were sentenced yesterday by Hon. Ira H. Reed to imprisonment for 15 years each. Joaquin and Ramon Ruis, accomplices, pleaded guilty and are awaiting sentence. Ramon Ruis, who was first arrested by Sheriff Thorn, confessed to having been engaged in several robberies and gave information to officers Thorn and Hume, which broke up two well organized bands of stage robbers. Great credit is due to these officers for their efforts, which have brought to justice the criminals who have been long a scourge and terror to this portion of the State.

NOTICE.

Any business of mine, will be attended to by my son "Chas. F. Wightman," who will supply the "Wightman Process" to those suffering from Hemorrhoid or Piles, and diseases of the Rectum; his experience in the "Field Hospitals" of the "Fifteenth Army Corps," Gen. Sherman, during the whole of the late war, was probably greater than Surgeon's have in a life time, out of the service. He will, no doubt, give every satisfaction to those needing his services as "Assistant Surgeon" or otherwise. Thanking the citizens of Portland, and elsewhere in the State, Idaho and Washington Territory, for their confidence and liberality, I hope our short acquaintance has been of great advantage to all. My address until further notice will be "San Francisco, Cal." In Portland, Chas F. Wightman, S. E. cor. Stark and Fourth street, P. O. box 247.

DR. T. F. WIGHTMAN.

W. L. ADAMS, M. D., A. M., LL. D., corner of First and salmon streets, is curing the most inveterate chronic diseases of all kinds at a low price, by medicated, electric lightning cream baths, and by combining the German and French with the American improved practice, mixed with a little common sense. His treatment is, in the main, entirely original and works almost miracles, as his numerous patients will attest. A lady always at the office to assist in treating women.

A NICE LITTLE GAME.

SALEM, OREGON, MAY 1, 1876.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

It has been reported around here for some time that the law firm of Hoyt & McCain had laid the political wires so that one of them would be sure to be elected prosecuting attorney for the 3d judicial district. It leaked out last winter that their plan was to dissolve partnership just before the primaries met; then one of them take the Democratic and the other the Republican nomination, so that no matter how the election went, their house would secure the office. So far the programme has been carried out. A dissolution notice appeared in the last issue of the Lafayette Courier, dated April 14th, and the Salem convention has given Ramsey his nomination. It only remains for the Republican convention to nominate James McCain, and the arrangement will be complete. A strong effort will undoubtedly be made next Wednesday to accomplish this last step, and it is believed by many that, if McCain does not receive the nomination, he will fly the track and work for the election of Judge Ramsey. It is hoped the convention will stop this nice little game.

FAIR PLAY.

TILLAMOOK CONVENTION.

[From the Astorian.]

Pursuant to notice the Republicans of Tillamook county held a county convention at Tillamook Landing, on Thursday, April 20th, 1876, whereupon Josiah Biggs was called to the chair, and George T. Sullivan chosen secretary.

After a few appropriate remarks by the chairman, the convention proceeded to ballot for candidates to fill State and county offices, with the following result:

For State representative, B. A. Bayley; delegates to State convention, B. A. Bayley and W. T. Baxter; delegate to Clatsop county convention, B. A. Bayley; county commissioners, E. M. Land, R. W. Dean; clerk, Charles H. Miller; sheriff, Oliver Bowers; assessor, J. C. Quick; surveyor, William Stillwell; school superintendent, W. T. Baxter.

On motion the above nominees were made unanimous and the convention adjourned sine die.

JOSIAH BIGGS, Chairman.
GEORGE T. SULLIVAN, Secretary.

MORNING, MAY 2, 1876.

CURRENCY AND COMMODITY.

There is an amusing money article in the Philadelphia Ledger on the subject of the replacement of the fractional currency with silver coin. It is not intended, however, to be amusing, but is a pretty fair specimen of the speculations which pass for financial wisdom in many of the leading Eastern papers. The writer is evidently in "dead earnest," and not a little burdened with the greatness of his thoughts when he remarks: "We cannot have two currencies of unequal values at the same time. Such a thing would be against the laws of trade. The more valuable will not circulate against that which is of less value. A very small difference converts the former into a commodity, as our gold is now, and the cheaper, as is our paper, becomes the exclusive currency and the measure of all values, including that of gold." The Ledger probably has not taken into its studies on the currency question the facts as they exist on the Pacific coast, and which have so sorely puzzled all the theoretical financiers of the East. Here we have two currencies of unequal value circulating side by side, and have had for about fifteen years. It is an anomalous fact, but it is a fact nevertheless, and its existence proves the incorrectness of the theory of the impossibility of currencies of unequal value circulating together. But, it will be said, that while we have really two kinds of money, the real basis of business transaction and the measure of values is single; that coin is the real currency of the Pacific coast and greenbacks are only a commodity whose value is measured by coin. This is true only sub modo, for in a very large number, perhaps a majority of the business transactions of the community, while the negotiation may proceed on the idea of a coin measure, the legal remedies for violation of the contract makes greenbacks the actual measure. The money that is "the end of the law" in these cases, is the paper money, which is worth less than the gold money by from eleven to fifteen per cent. But suppose it be admitted that we have in fact but one currency, and the other kind of money is merely an article of merchandise, what becomes of the Ledger's other proposition that it is always and inevitably the less valuable money that circulates and measures values; and the more valuable that sinks to the condition of a mere merchantable commodity? On this coast the gold money is certainly the current money, and if either can be said to be the exclusive money, no one familiar with the facts will attempt to deny that it is the gold and not the paper; while, if either is to be considered as demonetized and a mere merchandise, that one is the green back. The more valuable circulates and measures values, while the less valuable is bought and sold as a marketable chattel. This is exactly the opposite of the Ledger's theory, and of the theory of all the anti-silver people.

But they say our specific contract legislation over here produced an unnatural [illegible] that the currency on a basis contrary to the "laws of trade." The laws of trade are something which are not quite so clearly understood as is desirable, if they are to be made the foundation of dogmatic reasoning on the currency question. There are some propositions in commercial economy which seem to be pretty well settled by the history of trade, so that it is folly to disregard them in developing any theory of currency; but there is a vast amount of assertion that is nothing but assertion in what the world is accustomed to bear about the "laws of trade." "The laws of trade," as distinguished commercial statutes and international stipulations, are assumed to be natural laws. If natural they are inexorable. That, indeed, is one of the chief qualities asserted of them. Then how are they set aside by the local enactments of a little community out here on the Pacific coast, numbering less than a million souls all told? The truth is, these Eastern theorists will have to modify their ideas of money in some very important respects, or else confine them to the home market. On this coast where their fallacy has been thoroughly demonstrated in advance by actual experience, they don't circulate very smoothly either as the measure of the values of all other ideas on the subject, or as a mere intellectual commodity.

The following extract from a letter from our Eugene City correspondent, is exactly in point: "The eagerness with which a certain individual, J. M. Johns, rushes into publicity in defense of Holladay, revives recollections of the corruption and bribery of Johns at this place. He appeared upon the scene with his pockets full of money from Holladay; chartering saloons; 'fixing' voters, and standing board for vagrants. His odoriferous career, however, was brought to a sudden close so far as this place was concerned, by a sworn complaint of his bribery; but his abilities were equal to the emergency. The witness was run off, by what means I do not know; the case called, no prosecuting witness appeared, was dropped, and the same evening Johns concluding it was no longer convenient for him to remain, dropped aboard one of his master's locomotives. The reputation he acquired at that time would go far in this community toward a penitentiary."

There appears to be an almost universal opinion among those who desire to see Oregon go Republican this fall, that the politicians should take back seats and let the ticket be made up altogether of persons of known character for integrity and ability, who have stood aloof for the most part, from the disagreements that have existed in the party for some years. The bringing forward of a prominent man of one side, naturally invites the bringing forward of one to match him from the other side, and thus it goes on till the politicians have figured themselves into places on the ticket and the people, cheated and disgusted, repudiate the whole thing at the polls. Let there be neither swapping nor coercing, but let good men and true who have been only spectators of the strife, but not meddlers in it, be presented to the people, and all is well.

Charles O'Conor did not die as was expected, when he was so ill last fall; but survived to be annoyed by what we think is an unjustifiable aspersion of his honor. Perhaps Mr. Sedley, Mr. O'Conor's chief accuser, has read the fable of the ass and the slying lion, if not we commend it to his perusal, with the remark that in the fable that ass is represented as having been prudent enough to make perfectly sure that the lion was moribund before he struck him, otherwise that ass might have met the fate which is in store for this one.

The New York Tribune's London correspondent writing of pictures and painters in London, says that Mr. Williams, the painter most admired just now, is to receive the enormous sum of $75,000 for a picture which he is yet to paint. This is the largest sum ever paid for a picture by a living artist. The subject, size and treatment of the picture are all left to the artist's judgment, with but a single condition, that Mr. Williams will not exhibit it himself.

Senator Sargent delivered a long and carefully prepared speech in the Senate, against the Chinese yesterday, taking the ground that the presence of the Chinese is not only injurious to the interests of the white laborer, but also hurtful to the morals of any community in which they may be found.

The Turkish leader, Mukhtar Pasha, has at last succeeded in revictualing Nicsic. It is said, however, that he took dishonorable advantage of the belief of the insurgents that the armistice would be continued, and stole a march on them, and the insurgent leaders are highly indignant.

The chances are that Winslow, the Boston forger, will escape extradition entirely. The English government refuses to deliver him up without a pledge from this government that he will be tried only for the offense for which he would be given up. This our government refuses to give.

The well known agent of the Nevada and Northern Telegraph Company, Platte Burr, Esq., has brought suit against that company for $28,750 claimed to be due him. Mr. Burr made many friends here who will be glad to hear of a successful termination of this suit.

Our Hillsboro correspondent who is a pretty shrewd observer of political affairs, considers the Republican ticket now before the people of that county, the strongest that has been presented for many years.

A GOOD WASHING MACHINE.

COMPLETE WASHER

WITH GREAT SATISFACTION WE TESTIFY to the great qualities of the "COBBLE HILL" WASHER, which is in use by many of this [illegible] families in our city. It makes the wash day one of pleasure, and saves wear on clothing or fire to operator. It is by excessive and exhaustive labor by the women of our land, who are toiling all day long on an ordinary family washing in the kitchen, wasting away their lives and very little else, week in the year, and going out from the steaming tub to the cold air, which causes our mothers, sisters and loved ones to take cold so easily, causing pains in the back and limbs, rheumatism, pleurisy, chills and fever, etc., sometimes resulting in death. Ladies rescue yourselves from this thraldom, and purchase a "Compact Washer," the Premium Washer of our land, which economizes time and does away with this excessive labor; for you know that for one to have to wash by hand large articles, such as quilts, etc., that it is exceedingly difficult by the old mode. We would earnest entreat everybody, therefore, to have one of these Machines. They are within the reach of every family.

Best of Wringers and Clothes Pins always on hand.

Of the great number who have this Machine in Oregon and on the Pacific slope, not one would part with it. Hundreds and thousands of such testimonials could be given.

Supplied by JOHN P. SCARTH,

Choice Farms for Sale.

4,000 ACRES, IN QUANTITIES TO SUIT PURCHASERS.

230 ACRES DUE SOUTH AND ADJOINING the Railroad Depot at Salem, all under cultivation, and suitable for grain or vegetables. 946 Acres, four miles southeast of Salem, on the railroad with Mill Creek running through it. This is the choicest farming land in Marion county, with three springs, 3½ being in part of the old Rector donation claim, on which I raised the past year fifty bushels of wheat and three tons of timothy per acre. The first crop of oats ever raised on part of this land measured ninety-four bushels per acre, grain weighed and ground chaffed by Mr. Alfred Stanton, of Salem.

18,000 Acres of prairie and light brush land, with timber for farming purposes, bounded by the Willamette River for four miles, beautiful lake on the east, boat [illegible] digs all along the river, connecting four miles north of Salem—all choice grain land. The largest and most suitable body of land to be found in the Willamette Valley to be purchased by a colony. To be sold from $10 to $25 per acre. This land will all be immediately reservoired, and can be sold in large or smaller parcels, to suit purchasers. It can be subdivided to the best possible advantage, and I can offer any person or persons, or colony of persons, desiring to purchase homes in the best part of the Willamette Valley, near the city of Salem and within reach of the best social advantages, as well as most favorably located with respect to markets, greater advantages, on more favorable terms, than they can ever expect to realize again.

sympathy with the British Government. More than all, its Governor General, Sir Geo. Simpson, had brought his first immigration of British subjects from the Red river settlements to occupy these lands in behalf of the crown. Their journals and their diplomatic councils were made to believe that this was their moment to secure the prize of Oregon. The United States Government was led by them to believe that it could not be settled by Americans, for, as they declared, "Wagons could never pass from the Missouri to the Columbia river.

At this juncture the patriotism of the American colonist proved itself equal to the occasion. In love with the subject of another nation on his country's domain, having few supporters and little means against this rich and powerful corporation, the agent and emissary of the most powerful nation in Europe, beset by hostile bands of Indians, and by secret religious foes and plotters, he raised the American standard of self government and inscribed the principles of his country upon its banner and rallied under its folds to live or to die in its defense. His patriotism had before cost many a personal peril of life in crossing and recrossing the continent, threading his way among fierce tribes of savages, hungry, cold, and almost naked. This discipline, however, made him ready for another and greater sacrifice, if need be, to save Oregon for his country. The jubilant toasts at the dinner table in Fort Walla Walla in October, 1842, when the message came: "The brigade has arrived and the Red River emigrants are over the mountains," with the defiant sneer: "Now the Americans may whistle, the country is ours," roused Dr. Whitman, then sitting at the table, to say: "The country is not yours, I will cross the continent this winter and bring an immigration large enough to settle it." In two hours he was at his station (Wallatpu) 22 miles distant. Leaping from his foaming horse he said: "I must go to the States this winter." In two days, leaving wife and home, he was on his way with his Indian guide, and only one companion, Hon. Amos Lawrence Lovejoy, a nephew of Hon. Abbot Lawrence, late minister to England. Hardly a day on their journey, (the Indians doubtless so instructed,) forbade them to proceed, but by parley they got away. What sufferings they endured from snows, and partly frozen rivers, and hunger and fatigue and danger during that perilous winter passage of nearly four months, has been described by Gen. Lovejoy, the survivor, who shared it all and did his utmost to aid the plan, and also by those who heard it from Dr. Whitman's lips. A gentleman, Dr. William Barrows, then a teacher in St. Louis, now of Vancouver, Secretary of the Massachusetts H. M. society, who saw him clad in his buffalo and blanket dress, with frozen feet and hands, standing among the mountaineers in St. Louis on a morning late in February, 1843, resisting their entreaties to stop and tell the story of his winter trip, and then hasten on to Washington, though then ignorant of his aim, never forgot the impression of his energy and earnest purpose. You can imagine him clad in the same rough buffalo garb, a few days [illegible] sitting in the office of Hon. Daniel Webster, then Secretary of State, pleading with him not to trade Oregon for the fisheries of Newfoundland, and urging the same plea to President John Tyler, pledging himself to take an emigration, with their wagons, to the Columbia river that year. On this ground of the national honor, President Tyler deferred the plan of sale. Those who saw him overtaking the emigrants whom he had encouraged to start, at the North Platte river in June, 1843, and bid them throw away their rain posts, prepared for crossing, and saw him for three days crossing and recrossing that wide stream, swimming his horse to find the best ford, and at last heard him order the 100 or more wagons to be chained together and driven in one long line to ford for two miles that river swollen by spring floods, cheering the drivers permitting not a man, if it's hat, but they should sink in the quicksand, will never forget the man and the deed.

Gov. J. C. Fremont had sent by Preuss [illegible] to explore and protect a path for the wagons; but he found the path opened by their wagon tools, and guided and guarded by the vigilant care of Dr. Whitman. He had taken one wagon across in 1835, and now, eight years later, he could take one hundred.

At Fort Vancouver the most effectual was made by the Hon. Hudson's Bay Company's agents to exchange flour for wagons under the old plan of impossibility to take them to the Columbia; but Dr. Whitman insisted on having the emigrants to try him as they had done and he would take them up the Columbia. It was done, and the wasted supply at his station, and 800 [illegible] their families, wagons, utensils and stock to be received from the emigrants and the flour transported 120 miles on horses by Rev. H. H. Spalding, their missionary, from his station at Lapwai for Dr. Whitman's flour mill, which was burned by his foes during his absence. Then he sent them on their way rejoicing down the Columbia.

This immigration numbered in all the employees of the Hon. H. B. Co. and their immigration from Red River. It opened and advertised the route for wagons across the continent and saved Oregon to the United States.

Dr. Marcus Whitman, the missionary patriot, saw the crisis, put himself into the breach and saved the State from foreign control. When this grand scheme was in process and the wearied colonists were slowly arriving by [illegible] ons in the Willamette Valley, hungry and sick, with torn garments and almost penniless, their appeals to Dr. John McLoughlin, Superintendent and Chief Factor of the honorable Hudson Bay Co., for flour, groceries and clothing, met a generous response. He ordered the clerks to sell them [illegible] and let none suffer, granting credit [illegible]. For this act having [illegible] required to [illegible] the debts of the others, he nobly said, "When any person calls to my door starving and naked I will feed and clothe them. I have done my utmost duty to the company, but when you require me to sacrifice my duty to my fellow man and to God, I can serve you no longer." He [illegible] his office and [illegible] identified himself with the American citizens. His noble face and princely [illegible] entitle him to rank among the noblest benefactors, inscribing on his banner, humanity the highest patriotism.

But [illegible] was needed to adjust the provisional government. The legislative committee and "triumvirate" executive with other officers of the people's choice had served about two years with fair success, yet a more definite constitution, was needed and an executive head.

To one who studies the principles and purposes of the provisional code, revised from the Iowa code, with only such assumption of sovereignty as the settlers, isolated and neglected by the General Government, required, the impression will be made that there were statesman among them worthy to be the tribunes of the people. It is enough to say that Congress, in granting Oregon a territorial government, August 14, 1848, recognized and endorsed the acts of their provisional government.

On the great questions of religious liberty, personal rights and self government, public education, the rights and extent of citizenship, the protection of property, the co-ordinate rights of taxation and representation, trial by jury, the prompt execution of law, the guards against excessive punishment and the exclusion of slavery, the American colonists of Oregon proved themselves equal to the citizens of other States and superior in some things.

Four years of trial of the provisional government under the executive care of Hon. George Abernethy, chosen twice to the office, proved its wise adaptation to the wants of the people. No better testimonial need be required to the wisdom of the laws or that of their executive.

Meanwhile the bitterness against the Americans, became strong against the missions, and more against the man who had risked his life to save the State, and open a surer and wider field for his own work of blessing the Indian tribes. Some of the crowd who welcomed Jesus into Jerusalem with hosannas, no doubt joined the other crowd, who cried "Away with him." "Crucify him, crucify him." So this savage crew who had received many favors from Dr. Whitman's hands, and had pledged him their hearts, were skillfully turned against him, and roused to slay him and his family and guests, Nov. 29, 1847.

This cruel tragedy made a profound impression in Oregon and throughout the country. The settlers organized a military force and marched into the Indian country, defeated the Indians in several battles, and caused the murderers to be brought to trial and execution under the U. S. Territorial laws, after Gen. Jos. Lane became governor. By this prompt action the power of the Americans was felt and impressed on all the tribes.

Peace and prosperity attended the growing settlements; but there were still interests of education, of jurisprudence, of agriculture, and of commerce, needing wise provisions.

While urging the government of the United States to extend its authority over Oregon, the author of the Territorial Bill, passed by Congress August 13, 1848 Hon. J. Q. Thornton—among others, and in addition to the provisions excluding slavery, as the people had twice voted, and the 17th section, enforcing contracts made under the provisional government, also inserted the 20th section—granting the 16th and 36th section in every township for free schools. This act gave liquible and security to this vast blessing for the present and for all future time. Other gentlemen connected with the various missions, or independently of them, have established primary schools, seminaries, academies and colleges that have already given an education of more or less extent to thousands of pupils. The same men, with others, have aided in establishing the system of public instruction—now sustained by law and equal taxation—which is of growing power and value. Our churches, founded by these pioneers, rank with those of other States. In the legislative and executive departments there have been wrought out some of the best results of self-government. Our judicial bench has not suffered in comparison with that of any other State. The gentleman who represents the supreme court of the United States has the distinguished honor of the approval of nearly all of his decisions by that chief tribunal. A fruitful soil and genial climate have stimulated the agriculturist until our farms rival those of any State in the production of vegetables, fruits and cereals; in the display and use of the most improved implements; in the number and quality of the flocks and herds; in the annual outlay for improvements and the annual exports for the markets of the world. The forests, the fisheries, and the mines have enlisted the energies of increasing numbers, while swift steamers plying our rivers, and our fleets of commerce on the sea attest the skill of our mariners, the excellence of our harbors, and the breadth of mercantile enterprise.

The American colonist, in Oregon has founded a State which takes equal rank with the other 37 of the union, in the intelligence of its constituency, the dignity of its representation, and the strength of its patriotism. In the extent of its area and the variety and richness of its resources, its mines of coal and iron and the precious metals, its vast wheat and prairies, its grand forests, noble rivers and bays bordering the Pacific, as France and England does the Atlantic, it is destined to become a rival of the chief States of the Republic.

As the peaceful and successful founders of a Christian State, the American colonists in Oregon have been clearly led by the guidance of the Prince of Peace.

When mere commercial plans failed, and when the opposing policies of a wealthy corporation imperiled the infant colony, it was found that men connected with the various missions first and last were among the chief leaders and most efficient saviors of the commonwealth.

When the future historian shall write up the records of this State for the hundreds of thousands who will dwell where we now do, it will be his pleasant duty to inscribe the highest honors to the Pioneer American Colonists of Oregon, and place the name of the martyr WHITMAN above them all!

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

MONDAY EVENING, May 1, 1876.

The financial questions which are agitating the commercial centers at the East, have as yet had but little affect on matters on this coast. In the hard money districts of California and Oregon there is a steadiness which has in some measure saved the business of the Pacific coast from many disastrous fluctuations, and in many instances up till the stretches of our commerce, when it was shaken by disasters, the like of which brought financial ruin upon thousands, a tendency was less felt. Coin is still comparatively discounting the question of the currency, and it seems strange that this nation of inventors, with so many intent, during the past three years, on the discovery of some plan whereby trade can be restored to a normal condition, no theory has yet been found that exactly fits the case or accomplishes the result. The progress toward a necessary monetary condition, which it was at first thought might be rapid, it is now seen has been, and appearances indicate that it must continue to be, exceedingly gradual, and it is a growing conviction that a better and safer condition of trade can only be brought about by a reduction of values to what some call bedrock prices, and a writer on this subject says there are those who hail as a good sign every quotation indicating a possibility of economy in living, and a return to rates for all staples, such as prevail in other quarters of the globe. Dunn's Mercantile Agency of the United States and Canada, with the statistics of business before it promulgated the idea that the tendency to lower prices for everything, is to many the most hopeful sign of the times.

Reports from Washington state that the amount of greenbacks deposited with the Treasurer of the United States, during the month of March, by National banks desiring to withdraw their circulation and realize upon their bonds, amounts to the sum of $5,404,000. This is the largest contraction of the currency which has ever occurred during a single month under the provisions of the Bank act of June 10, 1874. The immediate effect of these deposits of legal money for the withdrawal of National bank circulation is to produce a contraction of the currency which has ever occurred during a single month under the provisions of the Bank act of June 10, 1874. The immediate effect of these deposits of legal money for the withdrawal of National bank circulation is to produce a contraction of the volume of National bank notes in circulation. The estimate of the Controller of the Currency, Mr. Knox, is understood to be somewhat smaller, though, in his opinion, it will reach $30,000,000. Treasurer New, who, before assuming his present position, was president of a National bank and is familiar with the National banking business of the country, is reported to estimate that the contraction of the currency under the Banking act of June 20, 1874, during the remaining nine months of the present calendar year, will be $100,000,000. In other words, while the nominal value of the bank-note circulation is $352,000,000, it will be reduced by January 1, 1877 to $252,000,000.

Domestic Produce.

Generally, Monday is a dull day in this as well as other departments of trade, and there has been no exception to the rule to day. Quotations which are entirely nominal in most cases are but little changed since last week. Wheat and flour are quite firm, and while the tendency to an advance is not very decided, there are those who strongly incline to the opinion that some appreciation in rates may be temporarily experienced yet before harvest. We, however, see but little to encourage this hope in the present condition of trade. Oats are unchanged in price, though there is a slight improvement in the inquiry. Mill feed is still scarce and unusually high for the season. Hay is in fair supply, and the demand less active, causing rates to shade off a little. Potatoes still continue to reach the market in quantities adequate to the supply of the trade, and the surplus will be quite sufficient to last till the new crop comes in. Shipments will fall off, however, from this time on. Provisions, especially bacon and lard, bear up well, and we hear of sales at 14c per lb for the former and 18c for the latter. Choice qualities for the home trade are rather above than below current quotations, and exports to San Francisco are increasing. The good weather will accelerate the opening of the wool market under rather discouraging auspices, though the very latest news from the manufacturing districts lends a little encouragement to the hope that later in the season there may be some improvement.
